Eighteen of the 20 osteopathic medical schools in the United States have eliminated their use of live animal laboratories in favor of modern, cost-effective, and humane alternatives. Below is a list of the remaining two osteopathic medical schools that continue this unnecessary practice. Please write letters to express your concerns over their continuation of costly, inhumane, and out-dated live animal laboratories.

Please note that this list includes only schools that use live animal laboratories to train medical students, and does not refer to basic research that may be conducted at medical schools and universities. For the most current list, check our Web site at www.pcrm.org.
